Internationalization of Higher Education

The internationalization of higher education is a major challenge for Taiwan's government and the universities. The objectives and initiatives set by the government are:

a) To boost international competitiveness and visibility

With all-around efforts, we focus on initiating diversified contact with top-tier world universities and institutions with whom to promote landmark missions and to develop international strategic partnership that orients toward widening and deepening the issues derived from the United Nation's goal of sustainable development.

b) To improve the quality and quantity of students recruited from overseas

We seek to lay out international talent recruitment plans and allocate resources to key areas, taking into account regional demands in the global issues and the balance between proportionality and diversity.

c) To increase students' international mobility

With a view to extending students' self-identification with local cultures to that of global consciousness, we endeavor to cultivate international leaders who are empathetic, capable of actively understanding, pondering, and resolving world issues, respectful of different cultures, and willing to move and change the status quo to make significant contributions to the world.

d) To complete establishment of key mechanisms and environments for the international talent support system

For the cultivation of international talent and building of an internationalized campus to be comprehensive and sustainable, administrative, teaching, and research supports in the form of a comprehensive system and friendly environment are critical. Activation of a flexible mechanism and the investment of appropriate resources are also necessary. In response to the different needs of various international student societies on campus, we aim to complete the installment of both the software and hardware of internalization in both width and depth to enable our international students to identify with the internationalized environments on campus and acquire a sense of belonging as a result.

- Number of international students

The number of international students in Taiwan is increasing. This includes those who have come to Taiwan to study Chinese and those working towards a degree.
